Lung Cancer Research

Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among both men and women in the United States. Our research program has played a role in many of the prevention, screening, and treatment advances that save lives from lung cancer today. And, we continue to fund research to help save even more lives in the future.

“Access to Care Texas”

The American Cancer Society works to remove barriers to timely, high-quality cancer care through our “Access to Care Texas” work, which includes our transportation solutions, lodging solutions and our National Cancer Information Helpline. ACS grants address these urgent patient needs to improve outcomes and remove financial burden.
